An inspiring introduction to a Canadian icon

About the book

From growing up with his brothers and sisters, to the lasting impact of his Marathon of Hope around the world, here's the story of Terry Fox and his incredible dream, told one letter at a time.

Even young children will be able to follow Terry's story – how losing his leg inspired him to help others, the love and support he received from family, friends and people across Canada, his iconic shoes, the van . . . and how like Terry, they too can make a difference.

Produced in cooperation with Darrell Fox and the Terry Fox Foundation where all royalties for this book are being donated.

2025 marks the 45th anniversary of the Marathon of Hope!

DENISE DIAS has long been committed to healthcare philanthropy. Prior to joining the Terry Fox Foundation, she volunteered for many charitable arts and healthcare organizations. Denise has published several children's books in addition to being a writer and columnist, with her work appearing in the Globe and Mail, Toronto Star, Toronto Life and HGTV. About the Illustrator

NOÉMIE GIONET LANDRY grew up in a small coastal town in New Brunswick, surrounded by the ocean. Growing up, she said she wanted to become either a doctor or a children's book illustrator. Midway through medical school, she decided she would do both. She now shares her time between the hospital (where she works as a rheumatologist) and her home studio, where she sketches, draws and paints surrounded by her wife, son, two tiny Chihuahuas and two cats.

The Friendship Blanket

By (author) Leonarda Carranza 🇨🇦, Illustrated by Erika Rodriguez Medina 🇨🇦

Jul 01, 2025 | Hardcover, Picture book, Paper over boards | $19.99

Sometimes all you need is a keepsake to make any place feel like home.

Aurelia has left her home, and her beloved grandmother — Abuelita — to move to Canada with her mother. At first she's excited about her new neighbourhood with the big trees. She loves her room, which Mami says she can paint any colour she wants. And she's looking forward to starting school and making new friends.

But school isn't what she expected. Some of her classmates tease her for being different, and she's left out of schoolyard games. She ends up feeling quite alone. With the help of a blanket Abuelita has given her, and the love it signifies, Aurelia returns to school with a new perspective and makes a true connection.

Inspired by the author's own experiences, this story is a touching and age-appropriate depiction of what it's like to experience racism and exclusion, and what it means to find friendship.

Contributor Bio

LEONARDA CARRANZA was born in San Salvador, El Salvador, and currently lives in Brampton, Ontario. She holds a PhD in Social Justice Education from the University of Toronto. She is the winner of Briarpatch Magazine's Writing in the Margins contest. Her picture book Abuelita and Me (Annick) was nominated for the Blue Spruce Award and won the International Latino Book Award 2022 (best fiction picture book in English). ERIKA RODRIGUEZ MEDINA is a book illustrator and publicist based in Vancouver, British Columbia. Her favourite things to illustrate are expressive characters, grumpy children and nature. She is particularly interested in mythology and folklore from her home country of Mexico. Her previous work includes Fighting Words — also by Leonarda Carranza — Margot and the Moon Landing, There Goes Patti McGee! and 48 Grasshopper Estates.

A young girl new to Canada looks forward to her new home and school. But school is harder than expected when classmates tease her for being different. With the help of her Abuelita's blanket she finds love, comfort, and unexpected friendship. Inspired by the author's own experiences, this Canadian-Latine perspective tackles the universality of making friends in new places with nuance. It tackles a tough topic and fosters compassion, empathy, and most importantly hope for new beginnings for young readers.

Reviews

Praise for Leonarda Carranza:

"It's an excellent message to potential anger-prone readers, wrapped in an understanding tone. Medina's brisk, dynamic artwork whisks the action from page to page, boasting humorous creature letters with mean smiles and gruff frowns." — (Fighting Words) Kirkus Reviews

"Carranza poignantly addresses racism and microaggressions in this book about a brave and observant child." — (Abuelita and Me) Booklist, *STARRED REVIEW

"With bright, expressive illustrations, this is an accessible, tender exploration of the ways in which many marginalized people experience the world." — (Abuelita and Me) Kirkus Reviews, *STARRED REVIEW

"A resonant, intergenerational picture book about an important and necessary topic; highly recommended for children's libraries, book collections."

Reviews

Praise for Barbara Reid:

"Picture book illustration can, at its finest, transport you right into the heart of a story's emotion and momentum. How anyone can achieve that transmogrification with the lumpy medium of Plasticine is an artistic mystery [but] Toronto-based artist Barbara Reid obviously owns the key." — Quill & Quire, starred review

"Reid's attention to detail ensures that even for adult viewers, there's always something new to notice." — The Toronto Star

"Reid makes the known seem almost startlingly new with her gift for observation, detail and humour." — Canadian Children's Book News

From Gordon Korman, the bestselling author of Restart, the story of a boy who's stuck at home with two broken legs... and who starts using cameras and a drone to spy on his classmates, neighbors, and a possible criminal who's come to town.

If Carter hadn't been checking his phone, he might have seen his brother coming down the ski slopes in his direction. And if Carter had seen his brother in time and avoided the crash, he might not have two broken legs right now.

Oops.

Now Carter is stuck at home for weeks, with both his legs in casts. Bored, he starts checking out the live feeds from police cams around his town. Before he knows it, he's obsessed -- watching his classmates when they don't know he's looking, and discovering some other VERY STRANGE things going on that no one else is noticing.

But what happens when Carter is found out... and the people he's watching know where he lives?

From the author of Restart, the story of two boys who are losing their memories... to each other.

Reef and Theo don't know what's happening to them. They'll be going about their days and then suddenly they'll have these strange flashes of memory -- but the memories don't belong to them. And at the same time, their own memories are starting to... vanish.

For Reef, this is a big problem, because memories are all he has left of his mom.

For Theo, it's strange because the new memories give him a freedom he doesn't have with his domineering dad.

Meet Frederick Banting (Scholastic Canada Biography)

By (author) Elizabeth MacLeod 🇨🇦, Illustrated by Mike Deas 🇨🇦

Jun 03, 2025 | Hardcover, Picture book, Paper over boards | $18.99

Meet Frederick Banting — doctor, scientist and Nobel Prize-winner!

Dr. Frederick Banting's remarkable discovery of insulin has changed and saved the lives of millions around the world... but that's only part of his story!

When Frederick Banting was young, his friend Jennie became sick. She had diabetes and soon passed away. Fred grew up determined to do something about this terrible disease. He became a surgeon, helping soldiers in World War I. After the war, he practiced family medicine and taught at a nearby university. But Fred still wanted to help people with diabetes.

One night he was struck by a big idea — a whole new way to treat the disease. Fred convinced a professor at the University of Toronto to give him a lab and an assistant: Charles Best. They worked long hours and finally developed insulin. To this day, insulin is still the only treatment for Type 1 diabetes. It has saved the lives of millions of people around the world.

This newest installment in the award-winning Scholastic Canada Biography series again focuses on a someone who shaped both our past and our present. Written by acclaimed non-fiction author Elizabeth MacLeod, the story is brought to life with the comics-inspired illustrations of Mike Deas.

SUMMER 2025 REP PICK! Krisztina Riez, Scholastic - National Account Manager, Library & Educational Retail Accounts

A wonderful addition to the Scholastic Canada Biography series. Ontarian Frederick Banting made a universal impact when, as a reaction to the loss of his childhood friend to diabetes, he developed the life-saving medical treatment of insulin. Believing that universal access and affordability were more important than money, Banting sold the rights to make insulin for a single dollar. Banting is a hero for all to look up to and admire for his curiosity, his scientific ingenuity, his problem-solving skills, and his ethical principles. His example shows children that change for the better in the future is always possible.

Reviews*Praise for Meet Chris Hadfield:

"... Meet Chris Hadfield delves a little deeper and gives children the anecdotes that will be most relevant to them. It's about dreaming and working hard and having fun while engaging with others about your passion." — CanLit for LittleCanadians

Praise for Meet Elsie MacGill:

"Elizabeth MacLeod has written an outstanding book. The language is flowing and exciting, and there are speech and thought bubbles that add humour and break up the text making the information easier to absorb... The illustrations by Mike Deas are as strong and beautiful as the story." 5/5 stars — CM: Canadian Review of Materials
